Lullberry

How to use your 21 days to Aging Well

Learn from the best books, then practice step by step.

A habit is a promise kept every day. This Aging Well series helps you welcome the years ahead in the best possible shape, together with the good practices you will choose to grow.

1 Learn your series

21 days · Sheet: Aging Well

One idea a day for a body and mind that grow older with grace: rest, food, movement, strength, presence, connection and acceptance.

Each day, learn and try

Read the day's idea and quote. Then meet it in your own way. Some days you'll try a tiny practice right away. Other days you'll simply pause and reflect on how the idea fits your life.

Both count. There is no wrong way to show up. When you have met the day, tick its box.

Feel, do or reflect

We don't all learn the same way. At the end of the Aging Well sheet, each day's idea comes with examples of how to apply it, in three ways:

Feel	notice, sense, appreciate.
Do	try something concrete.
Reflect	read, ponder, write it down.

Each example comes in a gentle version 🌱 and a deeper one 🌻. Choose the one that calls you, or mix them.

2 Grow your habit

21 days · Sheet: 21-day habit tracker

Look back over your ticks and notes. Which days lit something up? Choose one habit, or a few that belong together. Write it on your 21-day habit tracker with your start date. Keep it tiny, give it a time and a place, and tick a box each day for 21 days. Then decide: keep it, grow it, or plant the next one.

+ Go deeper, if you like

Sheet: How habits take root

Curious about how habits really work? Discover the best tips from the best books: 21 ideas on why some habits stick and how to make them tiny, visible and joyful.

Go gently, and enjoy your 21 days!
Christophe